

Inspired by their love of England and the popular response to their collection London, this book sees the father and son team travelling the length and breadth of England, cameras at the ready, to capture those special moments which represent the essence and spirit of the country. The result is an intriguing portrait of a land and its people, and contributes to the Gerald & Marc Hoberman Collection of photographs. With informative text by John Andrew, who also contributed to London, the book presents an overview of England and showcases its exceptional natural beauty, rich cultural heritage and unique attributes. It also shows England through the eyes of a South African giving a new dimension to national photography.
