

This volume comprises the Proceedings of the 1991 Rabelais in Context Conference which took place at Vanderbilt University. The papers are extremely varied and represent a broad spectrum of Rabelaisian criticism. Some discuss Rabelais in the light of earlier literature (Virgil, Folengo, Enguerrant de Monstrelet, the exemplum tradition) or of later literature (Harrington, Burton) or art (Bruegel). Other papers relate Rabelais to well-known or little-known intellectual contexts (rhetoric, the Massorah, late medieval theology, alchemy). All contribute something new to Rabelaisian studies and focus on what Rabelais's text actually meant to the 16th-century reader.
