

As a freshman in college, Christian Schmidt was diagnosed with Rhabdomyosarcoma, a form of cancer rare in adults. In this book, he takes us through his first year with cancer-- the diagnosis, the aggressive chemo treatments, living with pain, the impact on his relationships with family and friends. Through it all, Christian never loses sight of his life's purpose: to glorify God and spread the gospel. As he shares his account of those difficult days, Christian also shares the lessons and truths he learned about God's grace and love. Christian shows us through his own story that it's only when we live weak that God's strength can be displayed through us.
